Ballot Cast by Disabled Voter May Impact Legislature, Voter Access

A disabled voter in Lake County cast one of only 33 provisional ballots in the three-way race for Montana House District 12, and the impact of that vote is echoing with disability-rights advocates and concerned citizens statewide.

The reason for the stir is not just the slim lead held by the current winner (two provisional votes, as of official canvass on November 9) but also the actions of a Lake County election judge who challenged the voter’s mental competency because the man could not sign his signature. This challenge is raising blips on the advocacy radar. In a recent article, John Stromnes of the Missoulian quotes Raelynn Lauderdale, an advocacy specialist from the Montana Advocacy Program (MAP), saying, “there’s no law that says you have to have a certain IQ to vote. The only way this vote could be challenged is and not counted is if this person was judged of unsound mind in a court of law.”

Now, according to Stromnes, Lake County election officials will likely investigate court records to determine the competency of this single voter and to verify whether the man has been formally considered “of unsound mind.”

Professional Development in Autism Center (PDA): Autism Spectrum Disorder Training for Educators

The PDA Center is funded by the US Department of Education. Trainings are free (yes, really), and cover a variety of needs on several levels:
- Awareness—informational workshops, covering a variety of topics about providing effective services for students with ASD
- Consumer—information and support for families, schools, and individuals interested in services for children with ASD
- Implementer—short-term internships (including follow-up) that provide hands-on training in the use of research-based, best practices for students with ASD
- Trainer—extended trainings for those schools that would like, after successfully using evidence-based practices for students with ASD, to offer training to school personnel in their area

For more information on this remarkable training resource, please visit the PDA website at http://depts.washington.edu/pdacent/index.html#description.

Media Reports of AD/HD RX Medication Abuses Create Confusion About Seriousness of Disorder

Television programs and evening news broadcasts—from "Desperate Housewives" to "World News Tonight with Peter Jennings" to "Fox News"—have recently featured sensational storylines and unsubstantiated abuse statistics about the misuse of medications designed to treat attention-deficit/hyperactivity disorder (AD/HD) by people for whom these medications are not prescribed.

CHADD is concerned that these depictions create great confusion among the general public with regard to the seriousness of AD/HD and the proven safety and efficacy of these medications when properly administered.

Stimulant medications do have the potential for abuse by anyone, which is why the U.S. Drug Enforcement Agency has "placed stringent controls on their manufacture, distribution and prescription," according to the National Institute on Drug Abuse. CHADD emphasizes the importance of working closely with the medical community to diagnose and treat mental disorders, including following physician directives regarding the administration of stimulant medication. In addition, CHADD's 16,000 family members are concerned with the diversion and misuse of medications.

Medication, under the prescription of a treating medical professional and when taken as prescribed, along with other non-medication interventions, provide the most effective foundation for the treatment of AD/HD. For more information on CHADD's approach to the diagnosis and treatment of AD/HD, please refer to CHADD's Fact Sheets at http://www.chadd.org/webpage.cfm?cat_id=24.

IF REPEATING A GRADE DOESN'T HELP KIDS, WHY DO WE MAKE THEM DO IT?

Making students repeat a grade hasn't worked for 100 years, so why is it still happening? And why do government officials, school leaders, and teachers persist in recommending retention as a remedy for low student achievement -- even when researchers call it a failed intervention? Linda Darling-Hammond, executive director of Columbia University's National Center for Restructuring Education, Schools, and Teaching, has a one-word answer: assumptions. Many schools, she says, operate on the assumption that failing students motivates them to try harder, gives them another chance to "get it right," and raises their self-esteem. Those claims aren't true, Darling-Hammond maintains. The widespread trust in retention is uncritical and unwarranted, she says. It ignores several decades of research showing that, for most children, retention: (1) Fails to improve low achievement in reading, math, and other subjects; (2) Fails to inspire students to buckle down and behave better; (3) Fails to develop students' social adjustment and self-concept. Darling-Hammond concedes that grade retention might benefit some students in the short term, but in the long term, holding students back puts them at risk. More often than not, students who are retained never catch up academically. Many eventually drop out, and some end up in the juvenile justice system. The belief that students, as well as their parents, are to blame for low achievement plays into most retention decisions, writes Susan Black. But teachers and principals seldom accept their share of blame for inept instruction, lachluster lessons, low expectations, and other school factors that contribute to students' academic disengagement and behavior problems, Darling-Hammond says.

Educating Our Children Together: A Sourcebook for Effective Family-School-Community Partnerships

By Susanne Carter and CADRE

This sourcebook stresses the need for schools, communities, and families to work together to educate children to be productive and caring 21st century citizens. American families are described as more diverse than ever before, spanning cultures, languages, levels of education, and socioeconomic and demographic differences. Family involvement is defined in an expansive way to include and recognize the value of a broad spectrum of activities that involve family members and/or guardians helping children to learn, both at home and at school. Barriers that limit family involvement are also recognized. Research evidence over the past three decades is cited that demonstrates family involvement significantly contributes to improved outcomes. Guidance for schools getting started in family involvement activities is provided with the caveat that not all of the more than 80 promising practices organized into eight “cluster strategies” included in the sourcebook will work for every school. To be most effective, school administrators and teachers, in consultation with parents and community representatives, need to select and/or adapt strategies based upon individual schools’ needs, priorities, resources, student population, and community support.

President Signs Assistive Technology Act

Victory for Millions of People with Disabilities Who Strive for Independence

A Press Release from the Association of Assistive Technology Act (ATAP) Projects, http://www.ataporg.org

(Washington, DC) -- President Bush signed the Assistive Technology Act of 2004, which will ensure that individuals with disabilities throughout the US and its territories have access to the technology they need to help them be independent in school, at home, the workplace, and in the community. This legislation represents an important commitment to people with disabilities from the President and the Congress.

Millions of people with disabilities rely on assistive technology to help them gain and maintain independence. Every state and US territory has an Assistive Technology Act Program (AT Program) funded under the provisions of the Technology-Related Assistance Act of 1988. Legislation supporting the State AT Programs was scheduled to sunset on September 30, 2004. The AT Act of 2004 supports the continuance of State AT Programs and eliminates the sunset provision. By eliminating the sunset provision, the government sent a clear signal that it supports a federal investment for people with disabilities, which will pay off for communities, the economy, businesses and people with disabilities.

New Support Groups in Helena

Kelly Newman of Helena is sponsoring two new support groups in her home.

The first meets every Tuesday at 10:30AM. It is a group just for Mom’s of high-needs kids.

The second is an Autism Awareness group which meets every Saturday at 3:00 PM. It is for individuals, couples and kids.

For more information contact Kelly at 406/449-2371.

Spectrum Disorder Support Group, November 19, Billings

On the third Friday of each month, there is a support group meeting at the Scottish Rite Language Clinic at 7:00 PM. Call 259-1680 for more information.

Focus on Decoding: REWARDS, November 29 (Kalispell), November 30 (Missoula)

Many students falter in reading at the middle school level because they have not learned strategies to use in decoding longer words. This lack of advanced decoding ability affects fluency, comprehension and vocabulary achievement. This session will teach participants to use REWARDS, a multi-syllabic decoding program that has been well documented as an effective remedial strategy for students in grade 4-12.

The trainer, Dr. Feldman is the Director of Reading and Early Intervention with the Sonoma County Office of Education (SCOE), Leadership Team Consultant for the California Reading and Literature Project and Independent Consultant in the area of PreK- 12 Literacy.

For more information and to register online, go to the Region V CSPD web site: http://www.cspd.net.

Guided Practice using IntelliTools Products – Part 2, December 1-2, Polson

This two-day workshop is a continuation of Part 1. Participants will share activities they have created for a student in their class. On the last day we will discuss ideas for implementing these products in a wide variety of curriculum areas as well as purchase options for those interested in wider implementation.

For more information and to register online, go to the Region V CSPD web site: http://www.cspd.net.

Pre-K Handwriting Without Tears, December 9 (Lewistown) & December 10 (Billings)

Presented by Carol Rushing-Carr

Handwriting Without Tears® (HWT) is the easy way to teach pre-printing, printing, and cursive! It was developed by Jan Z. Olsen, OTR, an occupational therapist and handwriting specialist. HWT is an inclusive method for teaching children of all ability levels. Parents and new teachers enjoy the simple and clear directions that make it easy to help children. Experienced teachers appreciate the innovative techniques and limited preparation needed to have great success with the entire class.

Asperger Syndrome Support Group, January 13, Billings
Anyone whose life is affected by Asperger Syndrome is invited to attend these meetings. Meetings are scheduled for January 13, March 10 and May 12 at 7:00 PM. Meetings take place at: 17th Street Station, 1648 Poly Drive, Billings. Contact Valerie at 245-1770 or Paula at 248-6186 for information.

This session is filled with strategies, tips, tools, and techniques that are both highly effective and extremely practical in helping your students succeed. Specific strategies will help your students get organized, be accountable for results, compensate for difficulties and improve reading, writing, and math skills. Effective tools for positive behavior and building self-confidence will also be included. The focus is on high expectations and high standards for all students while differentiating instruction to meet the needs of diverse learners. The strategies suggested are time-efficient for the teacher and highly effective for students. This session is designed to include ideas for all content areas and will benefit general educators and special educators as well as paraeducators, other school support staff and administrators. These are the "nuts and bolts" strategies that you will take back and use immediately!

Session 2: Managing the Mathematics Classroom, February 3, 2005, Missoula - February 4, 2005, Kalispell
Managing a classroom so that time on task and student engagement in math are maximized is an art. Potential problems in the classroom involve motive and opportunity. You remove motive by keeping all students engaged, remove opportunity through careful planning and management of manipulatives and groups. This workshop focuses on how to organize and manage cooperative groups along with differentiating instruction to meet the needs of all learners. Effective management maximizes learning and minimizes behavior problems. To register or for further information please go to http://www.cspd.net.

Writing PASS plans, February 3 2005, Teleconference (Missoula, Glendive, Glasgow, Miles City, Billings)
Writing PASS plans (Missoula, Glendive, Glasgow, Miles City, Billings). For information contact Kim Brown, Transition Project Coordinator at 406/243-4852 or brown@ruralinstitute.umt.edu.

Effective Reading Interventions, February 22, 2005, Missoula - February 23, 2005, Kalispell
This is the second of a series of three workshops that focuses on specific research-based strategies and materials for working with students in grades 4-12 who struggle with reading. For more information and to register online, go to the Region V CSPD web site: http://www.cspd.net.

Working with Angry and Resistant Youth: Strategies for Fostering Hope and Resilience, March 1, 2005, Polson
This presentation focuses on factors that contribute to the creation of a positive school climate for both students and staff. Dr Brooks discusses these factors by outlining the key dimensions of the mindset of effective educators and other professionals including an appreciation of: (a) empathy and exercises to promote empathy, (b) our own memories of school as guideposts for what we do today, (c) the lifelong impact we have on children and adolescents, (d) the mindset of resilient youth, (e) the components of motivation, (f) the importance of a strength-based approach that identifies and reinforces each student’s “islands of competence,” and (g) specific interventions for fostering motivation, learning, self-discipline, self-esteem, cooperation, caring, hope, and resilience in students. Strategies will be shared for professionals and parents about how to strengthen their own “stress hardiness” so as to be less stressed and more effective in working with or raising these challenging youth.

Dr. Brooks is a clinical psychologist and faculty member at the Harvard Medical School. He also serves as an advisory board member of the Children and Adults with Attention Deficit Disorder (CHADD). His most notable publication is The Self-Esteem Teacher. He spends most of his time conducting motivation, resilience, and self-esteem workshops nationally and internationally.

Step Up to Writing- A Key to Academic Success, April 25-26, 2005 (Missoula), April 27-28, 2005 (Kalispell)

Step Up to Writing is a writing program which makes a dramatic difference in student success. This two-day workshop is designed for teachers who want to help struggling students learn to communicate in an organized and effective manner. Participants will leave the workshop with a wealth of strategies which motivate students as they significantly increase their academic success.

The trainer, Neilia Solberg, B.A., is a Step Up to Writing consultant for Sopris West Educational Services. Included in her years of teaching are elementary school and staff development in the language arts and content reading. Recent experience in Academic Achievement plans across the curriculum and grade levels as well as expanded responsibilities in coordinating instruction development.

For more information and to register online, go to the Region V CSPD web site: http://www.cspd.net.

Effective instruction, especially at the middle school level, is a critical component for laying the foundation for higher level mathematics. This one-day workshop focuses on the "big picture" concepts and those topics necessary for algebra success. By tackling the important topics and modeling the "big picture" concepts for students, teachers and students can "tear down" these roadblocks to algebra success.

Lessons Learned: Weaving Our Future From the Threads of the Past

This year marks the 20th anniversary of the DEC conference! In remembering the individuals and events that have shaped our profession, we'll see just how far we've come and use these accomplishments to build excitement as we shape the future of our field.

At DEC•2004 you can:

- Learn the latest skills to help you make a difference in the lives of young children.
- Meet with representatives from companies that develop the resources you need.
- Share thoughts and experiences with colleagues from around the world.
- Participate in discussions with leaders in your profession.
- Become involved in shaping policy that affects young children and their families.
- Attend exciting workshops, sessions, and special events.
- Celebrate 20 years of early childhood special education.

Taking time for professional development is essential for all who work in early childhood special education. The DEC conference is just the place to get the skills, information, and resources you need to meet the changing needs in our field. Take time to refresh your professional skills and take advantage of this unique opportunity to network with colleagues from around the globe! http://www.dec-sped.org/conference_04/about_the_conference.html

2005 ADA Multiple Perspectives on Access, Inclusion, and Disability Conference, April 11 - 13, 2005, Ohio State University

April 11th Pre-conference seminar presented by ADA-OHIO
Demystifying the Interplay of the ADA, FMLA & Workers Compensation

April 12th and 13th Multiple Perspectives on Access Inclusion & Disability

The Fifth Annual Multiple Perspectives conference will provide opportunities to share practical information on best practices, explore current research, and develop collaborations. The conference will continue its tradition of bringing together a diverse audience (individuals & employers, students & educators, advocates & policy makers, consumers & service agencies) to reflect on the many dimensions of disability. This year's theme, sameness, difference and equity, is summed up by the two quotes below:

In her opinion in Tennessee v. Lane Supreme Court Justice Ruth Bader Ginsburg said "Including individuals with disabilities among people who count in composing 'We the People,' Congress understood in shaping the ADA, that it would sometimes require not blindfolded equality, but responsiveness to difference; not indifference, but accommodation."

In an article discussing accommodations for college students with disabilities Paul Grossman, attorney for the Office For Civil Rights, described the accommodation mandate in disability law as an opportunity for rewarding self-examination. "No other set of laws so entertats academia to take its own temperature, examine its traditions, and thoughtfully deliberate about which of its standards are essential and which are merely unexamined habits." Grossman's observation is as true for the workplace and wider society as it is for education.
